

ABSTRACT

A lighted hand carried carrier having items stored therein. The carrier has an open but closeable closure and a closed bottom. a circular string of lights is placed at the closed bottom and is operable by a power source and a switch to illuminate the items stored in the carrier from below. The string of lights can also be placed in the vicinity of the top opening of the carrier to shine downwardly into the items stored therein. An intermediate string of lights can be included in the circular circuit of lights by way of connectors. The carrier can be a conventional handbag or an gattaché case or any other carrier such as a suit case